Günther Möbius (b. 1997 in Berlin, Germany) lives and works between Frankfurt am Main and Vienna. He studied at the Kunstakademie Düsseldorf under Christopher Williams and Rita McBride, and graduated in 2024 from the Städelschule, where he was a student of Judith Hopf. Recent exhibitions include solo presentations at Chamberlin, Zurich and Clementin Seedorf, Cologne. His works were shown in group exhibitions at City Galerie & Third Space, Vienna; Shore, Vienna and UA26, Vienna.

Sculpture and writing are the two strands of Günther Möbius's practice. Through both, he constructs alternate histories, asking how the past could have branched differently. Architecture is a constant reference point, treated like a memory device for how social and political orders form. The current project imagines an alternative path for the Weimar Republic, developed toward a database novel alongside sculptural work.
